AMERICAN ZIONISTS—THE J.D.C. AND REUBEN BRAININ

Some time ago we referred editorially to the acrimonious polemic which was going on between the leaders of the American Zionist Organization and the Joint Distribution Committee, sponsoring the Crimean Jewish land settlement scheme. Favourably disposed as we are to the Zionist ideal, we could see neither reason nor tact in the position of the American Zionists. Basically there is no contradiction between the theory of Jewish nationalism, and its complementary programme of Palestine activities on the one hand, and any scheme of relief for the stricken anywhere in the Diaspora. These two objects do not trench on one another. Zionism is not philanthropy. But Zionism does not and should not prevent a man from being kind-hearted and ready to relieve distress.

Since there is therefore no inherent conflict between Zionism and philanthropy, the reason for the opposition of the American Zionists to the Crimean settlement plan must be sought in the sphere of practical considerations. The American Zionists (and we are stressing the word American, because to our knowledge the Zionists in other countries do not by any means share the position of the American Zionists) took the initiative at the Buffalo Convention by branding the J.D.C.'s plan as a scheme hatched designedly to injure Zionism. The Zionists accused the J.D.C. of deliberately cooking up the Crimean settlement programme not to help the Jews in Russia, but to damage Palestine activities. On the face of them, these accusations seemed rather far-fetched. There had been no evidence of the J.D.C. going out of its way of constructive relief effort to hinder or hurt Zionist work. While the campaign on behalf of the J.D.C. may have diverted some energy and money from the Zionist channels to those of the United Relief Campaign, such a result was bound to occur in the ordinary course of events, and there was certainly no justification for ascribing any but honest motives to those who laboured for what seemed to them to be a very meritorious cause.

The Jewish press, both English and Yiddish, was almost unanimous in its disapproval of the position and tone assumed by the spokesmen of American Zionists on this question. The opinion was general that the leaders had done the Zionist cause a distinct disservice. To be sure, the manner of David A. Brown, chairman of the United Relief Campaign, was not above reproach. But the Zionists had started the fight and the bulk of the criticism was levelled against them.

Now, during the later stages of the polemic the situation of the Zionist polemists was made unexpectedly difficult and embarrassing by the persistence of Reuben Brainin, the famous Hebrew publicist, in sending cables and letters from Russia extolling the plan and the achievements of the J.D.C. in establishing Jewish colonies in Crimea. Reuben Brainin, be it known, is a life-long Zionist, the official biographer of Herzl, the dean of Hebrew literature and an honorary vice-president of the American Zionist Federation. He has been away nearly a year visiting Palestine and Russia, and his opinions were based on first-hand observation and knowledge. Mr. Brainin has spent considerable time in investigating the Jewish colonies in Russia, and he was emphatic in his support of the Crimean scheme. Not only that, but when he heard that certain American Zionists were opposing the Crimean plan, he scored them unmercifully, terming their conduct criminal.

Brainin's communications created a sensation in circles where Jewish questions form a paramount interest. Brainin's Zionism was above suspicion. His observations were unbiassed and his conclusions regarded as almost fatal to the position of the American Zionists. Brainin had never been a politician, allowing his views to be influenced by partizan considerations. He was ever known to be fair and sane in his analyses of Jewish life. His attitude towards the Crimean question bore tremendous weight with the people who were interested in evaluating the situation objectively.

The latest from the camp of the New York Zionist politicians is an attack on Brainin himself. For a while they appeared to be too dumbfounded to take any action. Now their course is clear: "Brainin delendus est." He must be destroyed. And in the last issue of "Dos Yiddishe Folk," the Yiddish organ of the New York Zionists, we find the first shot fired against Brainin. If anyone dares to disagree with the great men of 55 Fifth Avenue he must not be allowed to retain his status. Accordingly Brainin's position and motives must be put in doubt. The first article in "Dos Folk" contents itself merely with making insinuations. It is not a straightforward answer to Brainin. It consists of a few disingenuous questions and slimy suggestions aiming at creating an atmosphere of suspicion and distrust. It seeks to undermine the man because it disagrees with his finding.

The bulk of American Zionists will surely not approve of the methods of the few self-important leaders who have gone out of their way to look for trouble. Zionism offers the most profound interpretation of the meaning and purpose of Jewish life. Zionists, in facilitating the Palestinian experiment, are doing the most conspicuous work of the age. The few Zionist leaders who cannot tolerate any rival organization are not worthy of their position. Their attack of the J.D.C. is unprovoked and is sure to redound to the detriment of their cause. Their intolerance of difference of opinion, as evidenced in their attitude towards their own vice-president, will not gain them many admirers. Zionist leaders are expected to be courageous in defending their organization and ideal against real enemies. But they cut a sorry figure when they fire off their ammunition against neutrals and their own vice-presidents.

THE SEASON OF CAMPAIGNS

Descartes, the French philosopher, knew he was alive because he was able to think. Some ordinary individuals know they are alive when they get a toothache. Our communities become acutely aware of their being when campaigns begin dinning away at their conscience.

Communal seasons are generally as definite the seasons for straw hats. The Jewish season for meetings and campaigns usually does not begin until after the Jewish New Year. When motoring becomes uncomfortable communal business becomes urgent.

The present summer has not yet wound up its hectic existence. There are still several weeks before the official opening of the communal season. Yet here we already have the beginning of two campaigns, and at least one more lying in wait to prop up the moment the season opens. From present indications it appears that our few well-known chairmen and honorary chairmen and vice-chairmen of campaigns will have a busy time this winter.

Her tulle veil was trimmed with clusters of orange blossoms and she carried a bouquet of roses and lilies-of-the-valley. Sam Golt was best man. The maid of honour, sister of the groom, Miss Bessie Silverman, wore a rosewood georgette gown in bouffante style, trimmed with French flowers. By Frederick C. Todd, Landscape Gardener, New Birks Building

Interesting gardens do not happen. A garden that is pleasing, that intrigues your interest, so that you long to see more of it—is just as much the expression of an idea as is a poem, or a beautiful building; but we do not ordinarily recognize this until the actual work of making the garden is at hand. Even then it is not always given the attention that it deserves, as witness the uncertain efforts that are often made—the aimless setting of things into the ground here and there, the moving of them about afterwards, the lack of co-ordination evident about so many places.

Yet a garden is what we all want, and to say that our climate is too severe to make gardening a pleasure is far from the truth. Those whose hearts are in their gardens find that the long winter but increases the pleasure of the first flowers of spring and our northern climate increases the beauty of many of our best flowers. Where, for example, can roses be grown to such perfection of colour and form as they can here? Unless, indeed, it be in the Laurentians to the north, where the brilliancy and richness of colour is still further accentuated. Troublesome insects are also much less numerous here than further south.

In planning the garden, and by this is meant not only the garden proper but the entire grounds about the home, all thought possible should be given the problem as to just what one desires to accomplish before work is started. If the grounds are large the problem is usually easier than if they are limited in extent, for with large grounds it is often possible to use different methods, any one of which will prove to be attractive if properly carried out; but with the smaller grounds everything depends upon making the most of every foot of space. Character is just as valuable a quality in a garden as in an individual, and in planning the grounds an effort should be made to express individuality. This may be accomplished by carrying out one's individual taste in such matters or it is often possible to let some special characteristic of the place itself provide the keynote for the design. A particularly fine tree, a hillside location, an undulating surface, or the opportunity of making a fine rock garden—all these natural advantages may be studied and worked into the final plan.

Generally speaking, the house will be more pleasing if groups of shrubs are placed about the angles of the building so as to unite it with the ground, and the whole place will appear to be larger if the boundaries of the grounds are planted with shrubs, and as much breadth of lawn secured as possible between the border and the house. The outline of the shrub borders should be made quite irregular for if a deep bay can be carried into a corner and points of shrubs brought out to partially enclose the bay, the lights and shadows thrown upon the lawn will increase its apparent breadth and size.

In order that a garden shall be permanently interesting and attractive, various features must be developed as part of the design. If it is possible to see the whole of our garden from the sidewalk or from any other particular point we immediately lose interest in it, for there is no incentive to investigate further, but, on the contrary, if we develop even in our most modest gardens several interesting features which change more or less with the passing of the seasons our interest and pleasure is maintained and increased.

If we can just obtain a glimpse of a well-arranged flower border we are induced to examine it closer. If from there a rose arch which but partially conceals the rose garden, or a seat half hidden by shrubbery further attracts, the visitor will probably ask how we can afford such extensive grounds. Perhaps his area is even larger, but due to the fact that everything is open to a single glance, or perhaps cluttered up with single shrubs scattered over the lawn, one is not even tempted to take a second glance, much less to desire intimate acquaintance with the garden.

TRAFALGAR INSTITUTE

The extensive grounds of Trafalgar Institute on Simpson Street are being remodelled and improved under the direction of Frederick G. Todd, landscape architect. Tennis courts are being constructed, the lawns re-graded and additional walks and shrubbery borders arranged. Everything possible is being done to have the work completed when the school opens on the 15th of September.

"Sometimes when people censure me,
I tell them without rancour
That for what it cost me to be free
I might have had an anchor."

The Canadian Jewish Farm School at Georgetown, Ont., is conducting a $50,000 campaign for funds with which to carry on its work, buy implements, house prospective farmers and so on under the auspices of the Federated Jewish Farmers of Ontario. It was the idea of M. Saxe and others who founded the organization to assist Jews to come here from Europe as prospective farmers, teach them the business and help them to remain in it. The founders had the support and encouragement of government officials willing to admit Jewish immigrants provided they were to become bona fide farmers. Meetings were held in various cities, publicity was secured and a few zealous workers enlisted. The cause started out by being a good one deserving help. It should have appealed to many people, disturbed over closed immigration, as a way to bring more Jews into this country. With all that the cause has just lagged along and the organization of farmers has had hard sledding due to the abyssmal indifference of the Canadian Jewish communities. This indifference can be traced in part to the lack of recognized communal leaders either in or back of the Federated Jewish Farmers' organization. A cause these days cannot go forward without the proper sponsors. It is not their work nor presence, but their sanction and weight of personality which are needed to give momentum to a project of this kind. Therefore the Federated Jewish Farmers may be counted lucky for being able to advertise that "all cheques should be made payable to Edmund Scheuer." Scheuer is known as "the grand old man" of the Toronto Jewish community. He is of good character, his integrity is unquestioned and his co-religionists have faith in him. The use of his name should be helpful and also should be appreciated. For the first time now the Jewish Federated Jewish Farmers and their farm school plan seem to be facing the light. Gott sei dank!

The summer time brings many notes and letters to the editor on the subject of prejudice and anti-Semitism encountered in camps, neighbourhoods, resorts, hotels, clubs and any other places where Jews and Gentiles are thrown together on holiday. Each writer is abused and incensed and the letters run pretty much to form, the chief difference being that they are mailed from different necks of the woods. There is a whining note running through most of this correspondence and lumped together the wails would be louder than those that penetrate to these shores from Middle Europe where Jews droop and perish and are denied the most elemental human liberties. But the letters are very welcome. Writing letters to the editor is the safest known way of letting off steam under the circumstances.

The letters on anti-Semitism are usually written in such an aggrieved spirit that you may be sure the writers have been behaving nicely themselves. They have not been as noisy in conversation as inferior Gentiles. They have not been showy in dress that demands the very latest buckle and button. None have been pushy or offensively ostentatious in their behaviour, nor purposely over-extravagant in expense nor bejewelled at the wrong time of day with the wrong weight of trinkets. None have been loud; all have been natural, but retiring and modest. They have not shocked the sensibilities of so-called religious Gentiles by going out of their way to order trefah dishes when they most likely eat nothing but kosher at home. Each letter-writer has borne in mind that Jews are expected to go to lengths to be better than the Gentiles when there are Gentiles about. Each one has felt that to individual responsibility for correct conduct is added his responsibility as a member of a race under observation. Each one knows that he can bring the race into unpleasant prominence with little effort and so is always of good character. Because he knows all this he has not sinned. Each letter-writer has been good and mindful of what is expected of him. Above all, he has not shown prejudice against fellow-Jews, has he? . . .

Therefore there must be other reasons for increased anti-Semitism in summer time, if the increase may be judged by the increase in letters on the subject. Perhaps it is that during vacation people have so much more time to be anti-Semitic in the irritating trivialities and more Jews have more time to notice, object and sit down to write about it.

Bound for Palestine

By Rabbi F. M. Isserman

It is now more than one month since I left Canada, and I find myself riding on the waves of the Ionian Sea skirting the islands of Greece bound for Palestine. Jaffa is now but two and a half days' journey away. To-morrow afternoon my ship is scheduled to pass the island of Crete and slip down into the Mediterranean for the shores of Judaea. There are seventeen passengers on board. Some of them are Palestinian students who are going home for their vacations. One is studying medicine in France; another music in Vienna. Others are to see Palestine for the first time, to join relatives and to help in the upbuilding of the new Jewish life there. Hebrew is the most popular language here, and jests as well as weighty discussions are held in the classic terminology of the Bible. Interesting as are my surroundings here, I yet have the opportunity to relive in memory the sixteen glorious days that I spent in Italy, the cradle and the cemetery of so many civilizations, and as I reminisce, I shall endeavour to share my experiences with the readers of the Canadian Jewish Review, particularly those experiences which appertain to Jewish life in Italy. Wherever I went, I endeavoured to make contacts with fellow-Jews, to learn of their status and of their hopes. Thus I managed to gather some information about the Jewish communities of Italy, and that information I shall pass on to you.

NAPLES

The easiest way for a Jew to meet fellow-Jews when in a strange city is to go to the synagogue. This method I tried in Naples, but no one seemed to know of a Jewish synagogue. Eventually I managed to find a person who knew the Neapolitan rabbi, but did not know his name nor his residence. I gave that information to one of the hotel officials and after much palavering in Italian with one of his assistants, he managed to locate the residence of the rabbi and the synagogue which adjoined it. It was right in the heart of the city, and but a few minutes' ride from the hotel. I jumped into a cab quite elated at the thought of seeing a synagogue in Italy. My cab driver drove me up a narrow alley to the entrance of a courtyard of an old-fashioned Italian palace now converted into an apartment house. The gate-keeper was informed of my mission and led me up through the court-yard two flights up a wide staircase, and then rapped on the door. The door was opened by a lady who, when informed that there was a tourist who wanted to see the rabbi and the synagogue, called out in English to my surprise, "Come in, please." She was the daughter-in-law of the rabbi. Her husband was a musician, a citizen of the United States, who had lived there for many years and was now the conductor of the symphony orchestra of Prague. They were in Naples for the summer months. I introduced myself to her, told her I wanted to meet the rabbi and see the synagogue. She called the rabbi who could speak neither English nor German, and consequently we tried to converse in Hebrew. He led me to the synagogue. It was a large room next to his apartment, more like a private chapel than a public house of worship. It contained, perhaps, 125 seats, and a small balcony for the ladies. Naples has less than a thousand Jews, most of whose families have lived in Italy for centuries. These are the descendants of Spanish refugees, who were exiled from Spain in 1492. They live on friendly terms with their Christian neighbours, mingling with them socially. Most of the Jews of Naples are in good circumstances, and are well represented in the professions and in the commercial life of the city. There is no anti-Semitism apparent. The Jewish problem there is patently that of Jewish survival. The synagogue is orthodox; its ritual Sephardic. It is empty throughout the year except on Yom Kippur, when most of the Jews of Naples attend. There is no religious school in connection with it, and as the rabbi himself said, "Judaism is dying slowly in Naples."

To the Electors of Toronto North-East

Ladies and Gentlemen—

Referring to the stand which I took at the Toronto North-East Convention last evening, I am satisfied that I took the only action which I could honorably take in fairness to the 20,877 electors who voted for me to be their Liberal-Conservative representative in the Federal Parliament on October 29th last, as a supporter of the Right Hon. Arthur Meighen.

Had the Convention been correctly constituted, my stand would have been different. But it would have been unfair to the great number of voters who sent me to Ottawa less than a year ago, should I have abided by the decision of a Convention of a few hundred irregularly constituted delegates.

It would be accepting the verdict of a few hundred and ignoring the verdict of over 20,000 voters who were not at the Convention. I believe that the real spirit of the Conservative supporters of Toronto North-East is that their representative should have been given acclamation the same as were all of the sitting members of the Toronto seats.

My decision was in fairness to the great majority of absent voters that I should, as I will, be nominated on nomination day, and offer my name then as the one to continue to represent them at Ottawa for the Liberal-Conservative party under the leadership of the Right Hon. Arthur Meighen.

I will accept your verdict on September 14th, at the polls, and I feel and hope that the same number of voters, and even more, will confirm my action. I am satisfied that I acted correctly last evening in your best interests. I feel that when you elected me you anticipated it would be for the usual term of four or five years, and not a term shortened by exceptionally unanticipated conditions.

Yours Faithfully,
RICHARD L. BAKER.

USE OF SMALL CARDS OR ENVELOPES TO BE DISCOURAGED

From time to time efforts have been made to discourage the use of small cards and envelopes and it has been found that while these cards and envelopes are sold they will continue in use to a very large extent. Now is the time when dealers are ordering their supply of cards for the New Year, and if any good results are to follow they must be approached at once.

It is pointed out that as a result of the small size of cards or envelopes the post office cancellation mark frequently falls on the address, partically obliterating it. Then again there is not sufficient space for the name and address of the addressee. There is also the possibility of loss, as such cards or envelopes are liable to be caught or enclosed with other items of mail in large covers. Envelopes or cards smaller than the size of 3" x 4" should not be used as they seriously delay the work in the post office at a time when the facilities are taxed to the utmost.

EXHIBITION

It is with pleasure that we take this opportunity of cordially inviting you to visit our display at the Canadian National Exhibition, Booths 74 and 75, Manufacturers' Annex. This is a rather novel idea and the first time a display of this kind is to be offered direct to the public. All shoes displayed and modelled are of the highest grade at moderate prices, and are advance styles exclusively designed. Most of them are personally designed by Mr. Deitel and at prices that can compete with any of the American stores. Also goods exchanged. Money refunded if dissatisfied.

We are introducing

Deitel's Specified Brand

The meaning of "Specified" is that everything in the shoe is of top-grade material and workmanship. For instance, our $7.00 and $8.00 "Specified" line compares more than favourably with what you have been paying not less than $10.00 and $12.00 for.

There will be $1,000.00 in prizes given away in the form of $1.00 checks from 2 to 4 o'clock every afternoon. To our customers who will not be so fortunate as to be on hand on time, we will give away a $1.00 check if they will bring this ad to our Yonge Street Store.

MARRIAGES

Balick–Goldblatt

The marriage of Alice, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David Goldblatt, of Owen Sound, to Dr. Benjamin B. Balick, son of Mrs. D. Balick and the late M. Balick, of New York, was solemnized Thursday, August 19, at the home of the bride's sister, Mrs. I. Rothbart, 172 Grenadier Road. Rabbi Jesse Schwartz, Goel Tzedec Synagogue, officiated. The bride, who was given away by her father, wore an imported gown of cream lace over white satin. The petals of the lace flower design were outlined with pearls and studded with rhinestones. The long embroidered tulle veil fell from a cap of real duchesse lace trimmed with clusters of orange blossoms and pearls. She carried a shower bouquet of Sweetheart roses and lilies-of-the-valley. The bride's only attendant was her sister, Miss Anna Goldblatt, in a rose crepe romaine gown, and she carried a bouquet of Columbia roses. The best man was Hyman Balick, uncle of the groom. Miss Sylvia Goldblatt played the wedding march. The guests were received by the bride and the groom's mother, Mrs. D. Goldblatt, and Mrs. E. Balick. A buffet lunch was served in the dining-room, the table centred with the wedding cake draped with white tulle and surrounded by vases holding single rosebuds. After lunch the couple left for Buffalo, where they will take the boat for Detroit, Cleveland and Chicago. The bride travelled in an ensemble costume of black and white kasha with sport hat and shoes to match. They will spend a few days with the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. D. Goldblatt, in Owen Sound before taking up residence at 86 Fort Washington Avenue, New York. The out-of-town guests were Mrs. E. Balick, New York; Mr. and Mrs. L. Burnstein, Montreal, grandparents of the bride; Mr. and Mrs. J. Potar, New York; Mrs. S. Dworatzky, New Rochelle, New York; Miss Gytle Rubin, Chicago; Mr. and Mrs. D. Grossberg and Miss Bessie Grossberg, Kincardine, and Mrs. Weinblatt, New York.

Chousky–Moren

The wedding took place at the Talmud Torah Synagogue, Brunswick Avenue, Sunday, August 8, 6 p. m., of Bee, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. S. Moren, and Saul Chousky, of Detroit, son of Mr. and Mrs. S. Chousky, of Toronto, Rabbi Jacob Gordon officiating. The bride was gowned in a French model of white georgette. Her veil of embroidered silk net was in tiara style with a wreath of orange blossoms. She carried a shower bouquet of Ophelia roses and baby's breath. The maid-of honour, Miss Sarah Moren, sister of the bride, was in mauve-shot taffeta and carried a bouquet of American Beauty roses. The bridesmaids were Miss Anne Black, in bois de rose satin, and Miss Sarah Chousky, sister of the groom, in green taffeta. They carried shower bouquets of pink roses and baby's breath. Ben Emanuel was best man and the groomsmen were Nat Emanuel and Eddie Chousky. A re-

The Constitutional Crisis

The constitutional issue is pure political buncombe, designed to divert attention from the King Government's administration of the Customs Department, upon which issue it was ignominiously defeated in the House of Commons.

Here are the vital stubborn facts:

1 In September, 1925, Mr. King was granted dissolution by His Excellency Lord Byng, on the representation that he must be given a chance to secure a clear working majority. He stated at Richmond Hill that if such a majority was not forthcoming, he would not attempt to carry on.

2 In the old Parliament thus dissolved there had been 234 members, of whom 117 were Liberals, 66 were Progressives or Independents and 51 were Conservatives.

3 In the new Parliament, elected in October, 1925, Mr. Meighen had by far the largest group—almost half the total membership of the House. Out of 245 seats the Conservatives had 116, the Liberals 101, the Progressives 24, Labour 2 and Independents 2.

4 Instead of immediately resigning, as he should have done in view of the ground upon which he had been granted dissolution, Mr. King asked for and was granted leave to carry on, on the assurance that he would leave the fate of his administration to Parliament itself.

5 On Friday, June 25th, three separate motions by so-called independents, in support of which Mr. King's Government marshalled its last ounce of strength, were decisively defeated and the original motion of censure, to which the foregoing had been moved in amendment, was still awaiting decision in Parliament when Mr. King asked His Excellency for dissolution on Monday, June 28th.

6 To have granted Mr. King a dissolution under such circumstances would have been a direct denial of the right of Parliament to pass upon the vote of censure then pending.

7 Following Mr. King's resignation, Parliament by a majority of 10 did actually adopt a direct vote of censure on the King Government, and declared it unworthy of confidence or office.

8 It was Mr. King's refusal to follow British precedent in co-operating with the incoming administration to pass supplies and complete the sessional programme that left Mr. Meighen no alternative but to ask for dissolution.

9 Mr. Meighen followed the same course as that adopted by Sir Wilfrid Laurier in 1911, when he saw that it was impossible to carry on and abruptly dissolved Parliament.

10 If His Excellency had recalled Mr. King to office, he would have done so in the very face of Parliament's vote of censure.

11 Under Mr. King's interpretation of the constitution a Premier need never resign, but could demand dissolution after dissolution, despite the verdict of Parliament or the electorate, and the Governor-General must perforce accept his advice.

This is the story. It calls for no comment—it speaks for itself!

The Conservative Party stands solid as a rock for sound British constitutional practice, the maintenance of the British connection, and the right of Canada to enjoy the blessings of stable Government.

And avoid another election!
